Black Children's Campaign for Atlanta Victims

Two leading national Black organizations have called for all Americans to wear a black or colored ribbon as a gesture of respect and universal empathy for the bereaved families of the murdered and missing children in Atlanta until the case has been solved.

The Committee For Justice of Tacoma has also requested that Tacoma and Seattle churches and organizations as well as individuals participate by wearing a black ribbon on Sunday, March 15th.

The Coalition For Black Colleges and The National Black Child Development Institute have joined forces to launch a nationwide Black Children's Campaign on behalf of the slain and missing children. The slogan of the campaign is, "We Must Do More!" Its objective is to focus as much public attention as possible on Atlanta's children so that America will respond to this crisis with the deliberate speed that it demands.

Sadly, the deaths and disappearances of Atlanta's Black children coincide with a period in which nationwide conditions for many Black children have reached deplorable and disgraceful levels.

The Coalition For Black Colleges and the National Black Child Debelopment Institute point out that the wearing of ribbons successfully reminded Americans of our patriotic duty to the hostages in Iran. "This domestic tragedy is comparable to if not worse than the taking of hostages in Iran and black ribbons will remind us of our moral obligations to Black children. They will become a profound symbol of the tragic deaths and an equally evocative statement of our national solidarity to protect the defenseless," states Tony Brown.

The Black Children's Campaign also emphasizes the color black because of its association with mourning and when tied to the American flag, it vividly reminds Americans that the nation's morality is endangered. The Atlanta incident is a tragedy for all Americans.

The Campaign believes that this simple expression of moral support from the country would assist the families and workers of Atlanta as they face the stark terror of their situation and let them know what we share their deep sense of loss and anguish.

The Campaign is urging that Americans in addition to wearing a ribbon: volunteer to serve as an area coordinator; inform as many people as you can by passing out fliers in your community; call your radio and television stations urging them to publicize the Campaign and give appropriate news coverage to the Atlanta situation; endorse and solicit endorsements for the Black Children's Campaign.

Legislative Action

A number of bills have been introduced in the House and Senate which will impact on the status of Civil Rights enforcement in the State of Washington. Among such bills are the following:

House Bill 100 - Introduced by Rep. Art Wang and James Salatino from Pierce County area as well as other legislators.

The bill adds to chapter 49.60 RCW a new section which in summary states that any city classified as a first class city (Tacoma) may enact ordinances which provide for administrative remedies for any form of discrimination in sex, race, age, physical or mental disability, etc.

This bill was introduced due to the ruling made by Judge Brown against the Tacoma Human Relations Dept. which stated that local government cannot enforce its orders against persons found guilty of discrimination. Additionaly, that the legislature never specifically spoke to the powers of municipalities regarding enforcement. This legislation would remove such doubt and allow all first class cities to enforce their laws against discrimination.

House Bill 3395 - This bill would increase the number of employees an employer would be required to have in order for it to come under the jurisdiction of the Washington State House Rights Commission to cover from eight to thirty five. This bill would exclude approximately 90 percent of the employers in the state of Washington from any Civil Rights enforcement coverage. Additionally 450,000 employees would lose coverage under if this bill is passed.

Senate Bill 4122 - This bill would allow only the State Human Rights Committee to investigate and hold hearings on complaints of discrimination and additionally would not allow any municipalities to establish agencies or boards to Poor Folks Alert!

Now you know where you stand. Social programs are no longer fashionable. I wonder where the middle class will run when the hordes of poor descend upon their homes, begin to steal food from the supermarkets thus driving prices up--begging in the streets as they go to their two martini lunches. We already hear that the prisons are over crowded, the judicial system not working. If people can't work and have no food they will steal - simple fact.

My advice is for poor folk to learn to survive now. Not wait until all of the proposed cuts take effect.

Let take lessons from the past.

1. Grocery Shopping
   a. Never shop while hungry.
   b. Prepare a list.
   c. Buy bulk.
   d. Buy meats as the come on sale. If you don't own a freezer - you can rent a food locker for about $30.00 per year. All you have to buy is a lock and plan your trips to it during business hours.

Now that I've begun on a sour note, I shall continue. Cut, Cut, Cut - massive cuts of the Federal,State and Local Budgets and yet 100 million to El Salvador, billions more to other countries in the name of National Security/National Defense or Foreign Aid. Loans -- and yet no food stamps for John and Mary in the U.S.A. A foreign dictator can be financed as long as he claims non-communist intentions. Charity begins at home or so I was taught. Somehow our national leaders have forgotten that most great and powerful nations have been destroyed from within. Our military enlisted men are so poorly paid that they need food stamps to care for their families. Compare this to the privileges of rank - and yet no war was ever won by Generals alone. Now the last straw, slavery becomes a law if the President gets "Workfare" passed as national legislation. Maybe it's good for people to work for works sake. But I can see abuses all down the line, across this nation. I can see petty bureaucrats using a welfare grant to as a knife over the heads of poor folk. Just like the company store. Do this, or I'll report you the the Welfare worker. So who suffers - the children!

I'd better stop writing because I'm making myself sick.

We mourn the passing of E.P. Williams. He left a legacy in Tacoma. He showed that a minister must prepare his people, spiritually, physically and socially. He was a man who practiced what he preached, always a yes for his people. My sympathy to his family.

Mini Job Fair

Are you interested in a summer job? Do you know how to go about finding a job? If your answer to the first question is yes; and your answer to the second question is no; you should attend the MINI-JOB FAIR for 10th to 12th grade high school students. The JOB FAIR will be held on March 21, 1981, at St. John's Baptist Church, 2001 So. Jay Street, Tacoma, Wa.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Christian Friends and Neighbors:

Greetings! Thank you--each and all--for the lovely flowers, cards and letters; and for your prayers and best wishes for my recovery during my recent illness and hospitalizations.

I must use this means to convey to you my thanks and appreciation for all your kindnesses; because to answer each card, letter and gift personally would be a task not easily completed in my present state of health.

Your prayers and your generous outpourings of love have done much to aid my recovery and each day I feel that I am a little stronger. I pray that God will pour His Blessings on each of you and that you will remain strong in your love for Him until we meet again.

Yours in Christian Love and Friendship,

I would like to heartily concur with the Concerned Black Citizen that expressed the view that there is a hidden agenda on the part of public officials in the Tacoma area that is working to the detriment of our brothers and sisters.

This has once again been dramatically demonstrated with the announcement of the multi-million dollar surplus of city funds at a recent council meeting. It seems too coincidental that only several months ago the city was facing a dramatic projected short-fall in funds that required several departments to pick and choose people to be laid off and projects to be cut. This included a severe cutback in the Department of Human Development and several departments, resulting in an anticipated loss of jobs for Blacks in the city. There are people now on the street without jobs and city programs dramatically cutback as a direct result of this scare tactic last summer. Now, all of a sudden, there are millions of dollars available in the budget.

It appears that the policy makers should take a serious look at City Management and determine whether there is sufficient talent to sufficiently manage the city's fiscal and social responsibilities.

The nature of this problem does not exist only with the City of Tacoma, but also with the Pierce County government. Recent disclosures regarding the cost of the sewer systems being put in Lakewood and Parkland have resulted in an undetermined cost to the taxpayer. Is this a further indication of financial irresponsibility on the part of public officials and mismanagement of funds? It is interesting to note that in both cases, minorities, especially Blacks, are at the worst disadvantage and the first to suffer. It may be time to hold the elected officials fully accountable for the local governments' fiscal accountability and social responsibility.

WASHINGTON D.C. March 11, 1981

Senator Slade Gorton's newest staffer in his D.C. office is press aide (and Tacoma Facts contributing editor) Anna Perez. Ms. Perez is, of course, my number one Capitol Hill source. Now, in journalistic circles, revealing ones sources is akin to walking naked through the White House press room; it just isn't done. However, in this case, as the young woman is inordinately proud of herself, (and so are we at The Facts) just this once, here she is "Deep Pencil"...

"Deep Pencil" with Senator Slade Gorton

My source informs me that our junior Senator has two things that will stand him in very good stead here in Babylon-on-the-Potomac. The first is his ultra-hard working and able staff (Press Sec'y Kirk Smith is definitely in the Lou Grant tradition). The other, probably his most valuable asset, is his unfairlingly cheerful and gracious wife, Sally Gorton.

Senator Gorton is going to need both as he juggles his five committee assignments (eight subcommittees), two residences, and avalanche of constiuent mail and constant demands for appointments, favors and most of all, his time. In fact "Deep Pencil" wants you all to know that she hasn't had a coffee break in three weeks.

"Let 'em eat jellybeans"...

As President Reagan's merry band of budget cutters continue robbing the poor to give to the rich (add child and pregnant mother nutrition programs to the endangered species list) the Congressional Black Caucus has launched a full scale defensive action. According to CBC media man Ron Nichols the Caucus will release, in March, a "detailed legislative and public policy agenda" as an alternative to the White House package of proposed cuts.

Praise be. Having read the white book, as it is called on Capitol Hill, I know the CBC has it's work cut out for it. Eliminating food stamps for a family of four trying to live on a net monthly income of $690 and charging docking fees for yacht owners does not equal suffering make.

"Department of Appointments"...

Tacoma's Bill Wade and Seattle businessman Luther Carr are in a crowded field vying for the top regional spot at the Small Business Administration. Do the gentlemen know that clout-master Senator Mark Hatfield is lobbying for a lock, stock and bureaucrat move of the SBA regional offices to his home state of Oregon. Portland to be specific.

A Blessing Comes to Lakewood

New doors were open Sunday, March 8th in Lakewood. A new church, Evangelistic Center Church of God In Christ, with Elder James Stanford as its Pastor.

Bishop T. L. Westbrook of New Jerusalem performed the dedication service along with many Tacoma and out of town churches there to encourage Elder Stanford in his new endeavors.

Medical FACTS

By Dr. J.C. McKay

"Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth." III John 2

Most infections of the upper respiratory tract (nose and throat), are caused by viruses and require no special therapy. Nasal discharge (runny nose) when it occurs all of a sudden is almost always caused by a respiratory virus and again requires no antibiotics as treatment. In the newborn infant, however, it must be remembered that nasal discharge may be a result of syphillis.

In infants, persistent nasal discharge may be caused by a bacterial infection; and in both infants and older persons the possibility of sinus infectiuon (sinusitus). If the discharge is bad smelling, this may indicate the presence of a foreign body (object) in the nasal passage. One must distinguish these causes of a runny nose from the runny nose that is seen in people with allergies, again, history (what the patient tells you) is important in sorting these out.

Most persons with complaints of a sore throat usually have a non bacterial cause as well. Several viruses may cause sore throat. When bacteria are found, they require special treatment. Sore throats caused by bacteria known as Group A Strepticocci is common and should be thought of when a patient complains of sore throat.

The typical "strep" throat occurs in youngsters age 5-10 in winter or early spring. There is usually redness of the throat, fever (101 degrees and above) and tender neck swellings, headaches and "stomache" pain are frequent, a look in the throat may show pus on the tonsils or intense redness. We cannot tell a bacterial process from a viral one by just looking, a throat culture must be taken. It is recommended that such cultures be taken on anyone who complains of a sore throat, has signs on examination of the mouth, and/or children under age three with unexplained fevers.

The throat is cultured by depressing the tongue, swabbing both tonsils and the back of the throat and removing the swab without touching the sides of the mouth or tongue. The swab is then taken to the lab and placed on special plates to grow. By special tests, the germ causing the problem is identified.

There are several reasons for treating strep throats. First is to shorten the illness and prevent complications such as abscess of the tonsils or throat, middle ear infections ect; Second is to prevent the complication of acute Rheumatic fever. (Rheumatic fever may be prevented by penicillin). Third and perhaps most important, to prevent spread of streptococci to others. The treatment of choice is penicillins; and for patients who are allergic to penicillin, ethromycin.

A Trace of Man's Origin

Ann Brown is a young person enrolled in the Career Exploration Program. She is the 6th student we have had at The Facts.

By Ms. Annie A. Brown

People have always been astonished at how different in appearence human beings are. As of yet there are no universal reasons given for the color of man and his race. People throughout the centuries have always tried to explain the differences in mankind. There is constant disagreement on the orgin of man and where he first appeared.

The Bible teaches that the origination of the first man was from the Garden of Eden, beginning with Adam. On the other hand, anthropologists believe that the first man or the first remnants of man is associated with the continent of Africa. Incidentally the search for the Garden of Eden has also led man to the continent of Africa. Going back to the differences of people, the Cherokee Indians brought a myth into existence to explain the differences they saw between the Europeans, Africans and themselves. The myth went something like this: When it came time to make man, the Creator built an oven. Then he molded three figures out of dough. Well, the Creator had no previous experience in making men, thus he did not know how long to let them bake. The first figure he took out to soon. It was undercooked, half-baked, if you will. This was the ancestor of the white man.

The Creator decided to wait a bit before taking out the second figure but when he did he found it to be light brown and pleasing to the eye. From this figure all Indians are said to have descend.

So pleased was the Creator with his second effort that he forgot to watch the oven and when he finally pulled from the oven the third figure, it was too late. From this scorched and blackened figure, say the Cherokees, all black men descended.

This myth offers us a simple yet unrealistic propective on the orgin of different races. A more realistic view of the variations of people and how the different races came about is given by many anthropologist. It has to do with the change of climate and the inhabitants dependance on their area for survival.

As for skin color the best we can say is that then, as now, most of the people of the world were various shades of tan. That is their skin was capable of becoming darker when exposed to sunlight and lighter when not exposed to sunlight.

Some people had lost the capacity to tan because of an absence of Melanin in their skin. There were people in Africa who had the ability to tan because of an abundance of Melanin in their skin.

In relatively sunless areas, people had less Melanin in the skin which interfered in some way with the skins absorbtion of Vitamin D from the sun.

There are differences in Genetic frequencies for genes determined in the amount of Melanin in the skin. This is the reason that some individuals are darker and more able to tan than others. Variation in the gene type and genetic frequency occures for the most part in body features that are more likely to be affected by climatic or environmental difference.

Humans depended on wild animals and plants for food. As the earth warmed, animals and plant life changed in response to the new conditions. And with this change the human population of these areas decreased. People wandered away seeking new animal and plant life. Man was constantly on the move and covered distances of thousands of miles in many different groups. Under such conditions, humans from widely seperated areas came into contact. Mating occured, and genetic interchange took place.

From this look at anthropology we see that the migration of people and genetic interchange are as old as man and probably older. As a result we continue to be as we always have been, one variety of one species.

House Bill 3395 and Senate Bill 4122 are regressive pieces of legislations and could result in the state of Washington being one of, if not the most backward state regarding Civil Rights enforcement in this nation.

Who's Who

By Jean Watley

Last week, I received a poem written by Vera Ellis dedicated to Rev. and Mrs. Leo C. Brown Jr., who as you will recall was the subject of Who's Who. I encourage all of you continue sending in your masterpieces and displays of talent. Thank you.

TO MY PASTOR AND HIS WIFE

By Sister Vera Golder-Ellis

I love my little church on the hill, and the people who go there to do the lord's will.

I love my Pastor and his wife,
for their endless efforts to teach us right.

As I look back over my life,
I say, Lord forgive me that I've caused you strife.

This, I ask for our servant, Pastor Brown,
Please give him your blessing and a crown.

With his wisdom and his sight,
He taught my soul to see God's light.

His lovely wife, dear first lady,
Oh Lord, please bless her, I mean daily.

She is my inspiration and my guide,
A perfect example for a deacon's wife.

To both of you, I thank you dearly, for all you have done, for my eyes to see clearly.

My soul was saved, oh what a glory,
I feel like shouting this wonderous story.

I've made by commitment, I will do the Lord's will,
And will love my pastor and my church on the hill.
Amen.

Another poem received was written by Heidi Brown. She is the author of several poems and I say to you Heidi, Keep it up.

UNLESS THE SPIRIT

By Heide M. Brown
Unless the Spirit
Comes into my life, it will be filled with endless strife.
Unless the Spirit
Opens my heart, I'll not be able to do my part.
Unless the Spirit
Teaches me His Word, how could I have heard.
Unless the Spirit
Within I hear, I'll live my life in constant fear.
Unless the Spirit
Guides my steps each day, my feet will falter along the way.
Unless the Spirit
Is in control, tell me, what would become of my Soul.
FOR GOD HAS NOT GIVEN US THE SPIRIT OF FEAR, BUT OF POWER AND OF LOVE AND OF A SOUND MIND. 2nd TIM 1:7

Praise God for His Spirit!

Since I wrote the article about the hair doctor, I've really been getting a lot of feedback, people want to know where are the hair doctors. After checking things out around town, I found two more, Tommy Miller of Millers Scientific Hair Care located at 2151 South K Street, 627-9011 and Mildred Horn of Henderson's Beauty Shop, 1421 South 23rd Street, 272-6501. This is only a random assessment, but if you want to find out what kind of hair doctors they are, give them a call.

Search the Scriptures

By Evangelist J. Allen Elkananda

Search the Scriptures;"for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of Me" (John 5:39). Jesus spoke those words standing in the Temple during a teaching session in which He found that the people to whom He was speaking were merely religious in conformation with rituals; but knew not the Scriptures. And, unfortunately, the same is true of many Christians today. Could knowing the Scriptures be an important part of our Christian lives? Indeed...! The rules of the game must be learnt, understood and observed if the players are to be effective. The Holy Scriptures, likewise, are the Christian's guidebook and must therefore be read, studied, learnt and understood if it must be lived. And we are commanded to be "doers of the word, and not hearere only".

Why would Jesus command us to "Search the Scriptures?" If ther's nothing to be found, is there any reason for a search? Indeed not. Then the commandment to SEARCH must be of some significance. We are indeed commanded to "Search the Scriptures" because it is our road map and by not knowing it we're doomed to errors...in that we're bound to go the wrong way in our quest for eternal life. As believers we must take heed, therefore, that we do not err - less by errors we fall. But henceforth be deligent to our calling.
